SUMMARY

My research examines how firms respond to digital transformation and sustainability-related shocks using large-scale data and machine learning approaches, with a focus on cybersecurity risk, financial technology, IT investment, and ESG and climate finance. I have published or had accepted four articles in ABS-3 journals and serve as Principal Investigator of a National Natural Science Foundation of China General Program grant. I mentor students in research projects and innovation competitions, with teams winning multiple provincial-level awards. I also contribute to institutional development through leadership roles in international accreditation initiatives, including AACSB and AMBA-BGA.
